

The New York Times

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 2009

TV food shows only let you use two of your senses.
De Gustibus Cooking School lets you use all five.

Meet and learn from world-class chefs

Gain access to legendary chefs and rising stars
Be touched by their insights and personal stories in an intimate and interactive setting

Eat delicious food

Observe the techniques and follow the recipes of cutting-edge chefs as they prepare a divine menu
Smell and savor their culinary creations served to you

Drink exquisite wines

Discover a delightful array of wines selected by the Kobrand Corporation
Hear what wine experts are touting as the next best wines from around the world

Our Spring 2009 season begins on February 25. You may choose from a single class, or purchase a series.
Most classes are demonstrational, some are hands-on. It's the perfect experience to enjoy with friends or solo. See below for details on our roster of classes. Space is limited.

For reservations and complete class descriptions please call us at: 212.239.1652 or visit us at: www.degustibusnyc.com

BARBECUE ON CUE

We take our hot, quick, low, and slow cues from these grilling masters.

Thursday, April 23

ELIZABETH KARMEL, executive chef of Hill
Country in New York and author of Taming the Flame.